

ARCHAEOLOGY

Program Description

The Archaeology minor provides students with an introduction to archaeological research, with a focus on the (pre)history of North America, and introduces students to the knowledge and skills necessary to carry out archaeological investigations and to treat what is recovered through such investigations appropriately. The required courses cover anthropology and the science of archaeology, while the elective choices give students the opportunity to select courses on specific topics or time periods of interest. Courses taken as part of the minor will provide students with background knowledge of North American prehistory and in-depth studies of regional sequences within that prehistory. The Archaeology Minor especially complements such degree BA programs as Applied Anthropology and Geography, History, and Environmental Science and Geology. Students with the background in Archaeology and Cultural Resource Management that the Minor supplies will be well prepared to enter the burgeoning local market in these areas.
